LARSON-ARNOLD

In a candlelight ceremony, on the evening of Friday, November 2nd, in the Irma United church, Ethel Martha, eldest daughter of Mrs. Arnold, and the late Grover F. Arnold, was united in marriage to Arthur Magnus Larson, youngest son of Mrs. Larson and the late O. M. Larson, all of Irma. Rev. H. W. Inglis officiated.

The church was beautifully decorated with potted plants and cut flowers, a patriotic motif being carried out by the use of red, white and blue streamers.

Given in marriage by Mr. Jack Fletcher, an old friend of the family, the bride entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march. She was lovely in a gown of ivory satin, brocaded in a lily-of-the-valley and lovers' knot design. A princess, model, it featured a sweetheart neckline and long tapering sleeves. Her veil of bridal net, of finger-tip length, was worn in a distinctive puff atop her head, and was dotted with tiny white satin bows. She carried an arm bouquet of American Beauty roses, and wore a double strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

Youngest sister of the bride, Miss Edna Arnold, was bridesmaid. She chose a gown of queen's blue sheer and matching chapel veil, with feather head-dress. A bouquet of rose-pink carnations completed her charming ensemble.

The groom was supported by his brother, E. L. Olof P. Larson, who arrived only the previous day from overseas. Mr. R. H. Simmermon, brother-in-law of the bride, showed the guests to their places.

During the signing of the register, Mrs. O. P. Larson sang "O Perfect Love," accompanied by Miss Vera Simmermon, who also played the wedding music.

Following the ceremony, a reception to thirty guests was held at the home of the bride's mother, where bronze and gold chrysanthemums adorned the rooms. The

DO YOU KNOW HOW MUCH A KILOWATT HOUR IS?

No man can make a kilowatt hour in a day with his muscles alone, but Ready Kilowatt supplies you with unlimited kilowatt hours at very low cost.

Take advantage of his low wages and let him do as much of your work as possible.

It is said in order to learn the value of anything, try to make one yourself. In the case of a kilowatt hour of electricity, you'll find it quite a task to make even one.

Several years ago a stationary bicycle was built to drive an electric generator. At numerous Electrical Shows many tried their hand, or rather legs, at generating electricity. At one show, 213 people pedaled the machine until they were tired, and their combined work produced only 2 1/2 kilowatt hours of electricity!

At Madison Square Garden a champion six-day bicycle rider pedaled this same machine in a desperate sprint of one minute. The meter showed that he made about five-hundredth of a kilowatt hour. If he and his team mate had kept up this sprint for six days and nights (impossible of course) they together would have made about 47c worth of electricity — poor pay for a week's work for two famous athletes.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

MEET SERGEANT BAKER

By VINCENT D. LUNNY

Copyright
Wheeler Newspaper Syndicate

Eunice Morgan was upstairs getting dressed. Carefully with deliberate movements she selected her clothes—the ones that best suited her trim figure.

She hummed a soft, lilting tune and her steps across the room, from clothes closet to dressing table to the full-length mirror on the far wall opposite the window, were buoyant as though she were walking on clouds.

Eunice Morgan was happy; very, very happy. And the inherent gaiety was reflected in every one of her part movements.

Her brother was coming home on week-end leave. He was due in just a few minutes and, according to his last letter which lay beside the beauty kit on her bureau, he was bringing Sergeant Phil Baker with him.

Eunice was in love with Sergeant Baker; that is if a girl can be in love with a person she has never met. As she donned the first filmy garment she felt a strange tingling of anticipation running up and down her spine and she analysed the deep feeling of excitement as love.

What would Sergeant Baker be like? He'd be tall and dark and he'd have bushy hair—the kind of hair she wanted her children to have—she surmised as she fastened an "unmentionable" around the sleek curve of her body.

But what if he's short and fat and hasn't any hair at all? It wouldn't matter, she decided, remembering the praise Bill had lavished on Sergeant Baker in his letters to her from the camp. No, it wouldn't matter at all. After all personality and compatibility count more than looks, she told herself.

In the last six months or more practically every letter from Bill had mentioned Baker. Just casual sentences like "Sergeant Baker is a good egg. We have lots of fun together." or "Went for a walk with Phil Baker last night. It was better than just hanging around the camp."

From these references she reconstructed in her mind a mental picture of the Sergeant's personality and, because Bill liked him, she liked him too. That was in the beginning but now that she was going to meet Phil Baker this very evening she felt Cupid's little darts penetrating into her heart, playing strange tricks deep in her secret being.

She had cancelled a date for tonight with her regular boy friend, brawny Tom Williams, after she had arranged a party for Baker and her brother. She was going to surprise them.

She'd reserved a table for four on the Roof Gardens where they could eat and dance and chase the hours away and she'd got a date for Bill to complete the foursome.

Tom Williams was miffed, of course, or was that putting it mildly? He'd sounded angry when she had phoned to say that she couldn't keep the date with him because Bill was coming in on leave.

"You know how it is, Tom," she'd said. "My big brother doesn't get leave very often and I so much want to spend this evening with him."

"But I do mind!" He'd detected her hesitation. His voice had rose and a note of anger had crept into it. "We have a date. That's definite. And I don't see why your brother's visit should upset all the plans. He'd emphasized the word all. 'Are you sure there isn't someone else involved?'"

"Well, if you want to put it that way, there is," she'd replied. "I'm going out with Sergeant Baker, a friend of Bill's who's coming in with him."

"But... but you can't do that..." "Oh, can't I?" she'd replied flippantly. "I can and I'm going to. Good-bye for now, Tom."

Eunice remembered the conversation as she pulled her best dress over her head. Oh well, she could make up to him after the week-end and tonight she would have a grand time with Sergeant Baker.

She heard the front door open as she slipped and perfume behind her ears and rubbed the last few drops into her eyebrows. There was a clamor of voices in the hall downstairs as Bill and the sergeant were greeted by other members of the family.

She brushed back a few unruly wisps of hair, looked at herself proudly in the mirror and, with heart beating faster and faster, she descended the stairs.

Bill met her at the foot of the staircase, neat as a button in his walking out uniform, with the new corporal's chevrons on his sleeves.

"Hi, sis," he greeted her enthusiastically, planting a big, brotherly kiss on her upturned cheek. She'd turned her face so he wouldn't mark her lipstick. All set for a big time tonight, sis?

"Uh-huh," bubbled. "I've reserved a table for four at the Roof Gardens... for the supper dance. And I've got a date for you with Polly Marshall... she'll be here in a few minutes."

"Polly Marshall? But... but..." "No, but now. You sound like you're kidding. Come on, take me into the living room introduce me to Sergeant Baker. I'm just dying to meet your friend."

Eunice took her brother by the arm and piloted him through the living room door. A figure in khaki was sitting by the fireplace.

"Sis, I'd like you to meet Sergeant Phyllis Baker of the Women's Army Corps. She's a good egg. Why, Eunice, what's the matter?"

Many Good Openings

Available in Smaller Towns, For Dentists Leaving War Service
Dentists attached to the Canadian armed forces are reported to be facing a rehabilitation problem. They are coming out of the service to find the field somewhat crowded in the cities, and openings existing only in the smaller towns.

This is not entirely to be regretted. It is likely to lead to a movement that will be to the advantage of both the country and the dental profession. It is no hardship to live in a small town. In fact, there is much in such places to make life worth while. A man with a good profession can really make a success of it there, and his position will be enjoyable and attractive, for he will find himself a prominent citizen, looked up to and respected. Added to this will be the service he can render people who, too often in the past, have been denied the best in treatment because of the lure of the metropolitan field. —Windsor Star.

SMILE AWHILE

Jones: "I hear you bought a car cheap the other day. How are you getting on with it?"

Smith: "I'm just realizing how hard it is to drive a bargain."

Sister's Sutor: "Johnny, I dislike to tell you, but last night at the party your sister promised to become my wife. Can you forgive me for taking her away?"

Johnny: "Shucks, that's what the party was for."

"That was a beautiful hat, Pat, your wife wore to church last Sunday. It was so high I could hardly see the pulpit above it."

"It should 'a' been beautiful! Mike; an' if she'd worn the hat that came with it, you wouldn't 'a' seen the steeple!"

Fittings in the House of a Hollywood film actress are made of gold. All the curtains are hung on her former wedding rings.

"Do you really love me, Alfred?" asked the girl.

"Ethel, I refer you to my last letter," replied the young man.

"Devotedly" is on the first page, "madly" on page 3, "passionately" on pages 4 and 5, and "in death do us part" in the postscript. I cannot see more—seriously, Ethel!"

"Would you like to see a model home?"

"Glad to. What time does she quit work?"

"Why did you leave your last job?"

"Illness. The boss got sick of me."

Bill: "Did any one in your family ever make a brilliant marriage?"

Arthur: "Only my wife."

He never knew what real happiness was until he got married; and then it was too late.

He was reading to his wife an account of a famous naturalist's accident.

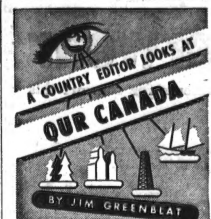

"Reaching for a rare plant, he slipped and fell, and as he fell he gathered momentum."

"Oh, George," she interrupted, "the poor man! What an enthusiast he must have been. Fancy picking flowers even as he fell."

"Is your boy friend a bookworm?"

"No, just an ordinary kind."

A little industry but growing: In Manitoba, the Co-op Vegetable Oils Ltd. meeting at Altona, heard that 12,000 acres of sunflowers had been planted in the southern part of the province; over 90% was undamaged by frost and on the basis of $3 a lb., assures farmers over half a million dollars for this crop alone.

Wouldn't you like to live with Mrs. A. H. MacKinnon of Deep Creek, B.C. He punched right out, did the editor of the Manitoba (Man.) Western Canadian, with the following editorial following the recent election; and it might do us all good to read and digest it. It is a crying shame that scarcely any interest is being taken by people qualified to express their choice at the polls of the representative desired by the majority to be sent to the legislature for the next term. The gross lack of freedom is positively insulting to democratic government. In former days, parties were on their toes on the announcement of an election, and most interesting in public affairs was manifested. Now the apathy is most appalling. Nobody seems to give a damn whether school keeps or not. . . . Our young men and women are lackadaisical as to public welfare, caring more for dances, sports and other forms of amusement, than for matters touching the public questions. We survey this local riding, and we cannot but have an ambitious young man or woman to reach out for this honorable office of representing people in the halls of government. Like the weeds along the roadside, political interests, which means nothing more or less than the business of the public, has gone to seed. It is a very dangerous state of affairs, and if it continues, dire results to freedom of the people will surely result."

The North Battleford (Sask.) Optimist has this to say: "The Canadian brides going to Britain will also discover that rationing is more than a far more rigorous scale, and that housekeeping is more difficult than here. . . . This interchange of Commonwealth brides is all to the good. It will be a means of cementing the Commonwealth of Nations together in a more binding manner. Here's wishing long life and happiness to all the gals."

A mighty fine record for the five sons of Mr. and Mrs. John Macdonald of Upsalquitch, N.B., who all enlisted in the Royal Rifles of Canada at the same time. Four were made privates at Hong Kong and the four have now been liberated. What a homecoming that will be.

Technique For The Treatment Of

Sheep Pelts
Australian sheep may soon produce "furs" for coats and trimmings. Victorian Minister for Agriculture Norman Martin has announced a new technique for treating sheep pelts to make them into furs resembling beaver.

He explained that pelts with only half to one and a half inches of wool, for which the farmer usually received between one and six pennies (1c to 6c), could be made to replace ordinary trade furs for trimmings, and would wear better than ordinary furs. They were not yet on the market, but the pioneers of the new process in Victoria were far in advance of American competitors.

One of the leading manufacturers had gone abroad to secure machinery, and he estimated that with the employment of 1,000 workers, only five per cent. need be trained. Mr. Martin also forecast making carpet rugs and handbags from sheepskin—Australian News Letter.

BREAKFAST SUGGESTIONS
"Bigger breakfasts—better lunches" will be the nutrition theme song for the coming winter. Too many people have acquired the habit of eating on the run lately because of so little time. With even more hours of strenuous work in the office, however, everyone needs a hearty meal with which to start out the day. It's a good health investment.

An ideal cold weather breakfast includes a hot cereal. Occasionally, hot milk on rusks is a welcome variation from the usual cooked cereals. It's nutritious and easily prepared in no time at all. The addition of cooked fruit make it a special treat.

Rusks, as well as other foods, contain an abundance of calories or heat units, and they rank high among suppliers of food-energy. Fortunately, they're inexpensive and always available.

Either whole fruit or fruit juice should also be included in the breakfast menu. Oranges, and grapefruit contain vitamin C and other fruits supply various other vitamins and minerals. They are essential to a well-rounded diet. Eggs in some form should be served four times a week if possible. Other times pancakes, sweet rolls, toast and bacon or sausage complete the menu.

Many housewives find that a few minutes time, at the beginning of each week, devoted to planning menus for the entire seven days, saves time and makes for better nutritional efficiency. You, as homemakers, play one of the most important roles as the custodian of your families' health. You are responsible for keeping them on the job every day, so be sure to see that they are properly fed.

CALIFORNIA, HERE WE COME!
If you've got wanderlust in your system but the pocketbook whispers "can't be done," R.C.A.P. Bergt and Mrs. Johnnie Allen, Toronto, can give you a few tips. They made a trip to Los Angeles and back in 13 days and it cost them less than $70. The Allens thumbed all the way. Allen, who was stationed at Aylesbury, Ont., and his wife just got out on the highway. They stuck up their thumbs and six days later they were visiting friends in California. They came back the same way, making the return trip in seven days. Truck and bus drivers are really gentlemen on the road, the Allens feel. "The longest wait we ever had for a lift was less than three hours," Allen said. The Allens were newly-weds when they set out for Los Angeles, so although not intended as such it turned out to be their honeymoon trip. Allen is now at the University of Toronto completing the education interrupted by the war.

Radio Industry

Britain To Undertake Important Expansion in Research
Plans for the United Kingdom radio industry to undertake large-scale development work for the services was announced on October 5th by Air Vice Marshal Tait, Director General of Signals at the United Kingdom Air Ministry.

This step will entail an important expansion in radio research—an expansion which will also benefit the industry's civilian customers, since the new development and advances can be incorporated in the commercial radio products.

Apart from the fact that there is an acute world shortage of radio equipment, Britain's ability to produce the most modern equipment, incorporating all the latest technical devices, will give the industry a leading place in overseas markets, says Air Vice Marshal Tait. Export opportunities in the field of television and radar will be especially great.

TARIFFS - The Farmer's Enemy

Tariffs are enemies of the farmer just as are weeds, insects and plant diseases. Tariffs curtail imports of goods into Canada, hence curtail exports going out of Canada. Farmers and all of us should demand a sharp lowering of Canadian tariffs.

SEARLE GRAIN COMPANY, LTD.

Real Achievement

Try and recall any service farmers have to purchase, the charges for which were lowered during the war years or prior there to. Can you think of more than one?

Yet grain handling charges in country elevators were reduced to the lowest point in history during the war years.

The reason therefore was the fact that the Wheat Pools, the farmers' own organizations, are in business.

The Wheat Pools have earned the whole-hearted support of every farmer.
